

FAASTeam presents:

FAA Compliance Philosophy

The Federal Aviation Administration is revamping its Compliance Philosophy in a new collaborative way, with a new emphasis on education and remedial training, as opposed to disciplinary action. In light of this, San Carlos Flight Center has invited the San Jose FSDO to introduce the FAA's Enforcement Program and Compliance Philosophy to the San Carlos Airport community. The FAA is switching its focus from enforcement to an educational approach centered around remedial training and addressing key safety issues. The FAA will now offer remedial training as an alternative to certificate action. The FAA's new compliance philosophy is designed to create a partnership between the aviation community and the FAA to promote open and honest communication. In this way, the FAA can focus on fostering a culture of safety, while also improving pilot skills.

Join Karen Arendt and Jeff Ebey for a casual round table discussion on the FAA's Compliance Philosophy. Harlow will provide an outline of the FAA's new approach to improving General Aviation safety, receive feedback, and help answer questions the pilot community may have.
